Bible Gift Questioned In Zeeland

ZEELAND — A tradition spanning more than 50 years may be forced to an end in the Zeeland Public Schools.

For more than half a century graduates at Zeeland High School received diplomas and a Bible at the commencement exercises and they were to receive the Bibles at the June 11 exercises.

But the Grand Rapids chapter of Americans United for Separation of Church and State questioned the practice and threatened possible legal action if the practice is continued.

A letter from a Grand Rapids law firm representing the chapter was presented to the board Tuesday and chapter president, the Rev. Jay Wabeke appeared at the meeting.

The chapter questioned use of public monies to supply Bibles to the graduates.

The board referred the letter to the superintendent for consultations with the board's attorney.

School board president Bruce De Pree said the use of public funds to supply the Bibles was in question and whether private citizens could supply the Bibles.

In other action the board approved bids for construction of six tennis courts on a site north of the middle school at a cost of $52,763. Work is expected to be completed during the summer.

SPRAY FOR FISH—A helicopter being used by the Department of Natural Resources sprayed an area of the marsh lands near Windmill Island Tuesday as part of a DNR fish kill project in Lake Macatawa to rid the lake of carp and prepare it for restocking with bass and walleyes. ## Committee Set For Rose Float

A Rose Parade Float committee was appointed by Mayor Lou Hallacy today to handle all details of entering a City of Holland float in the 1976 Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1.

Serving on the committee will be Mayor Hallacy; Nelson Bosman, president of Tulip Time Inc.; Jaap de Bleecourt, director of Windmill Island; Jacob De Graaf, superintendent of parks and cemeteries; Roscoe Giles, executive vice president of the Holland Chamber of Commerce; Terry Hofmeyer, new city manager; Willard C. Wichers, Netherlands consul for press and cultural affairs; Judy Zylman, chairman of the Holland Bicentennial Commission; and City Councilmen John Bloemendaal and James Vande Poel.

The mayor said no local tax monies will be used for the float. Although the City of Holland will be the formal parade entry, the project will have meaning for the entire community and contributions will be solicited during an area-wide fund drive.

Based on preliminary discussions with float designers, $20,000 to $30,000 will be needed, Hallacy said, and in order to proceed with the float's design which must be submitted to the Tournament of Roses Association by Oct. 1, the necessary funds should be available no later than July 1.

"It is our hope that the enthusiasm and support of each resident of the Holland area will make this goal possible," the mayor said.

He quoted from his letter to James Boyle, float entries chairman, in which he requested consideration of Holland as an entry: "We believe Holland's participation in the Tournament of Roses Parade would be unusually appropriate. Two of the three Bicentennial themes, 'heritage' and 'festivals,' would be excellently represented. In addition, Holland, through its rich history of pioneering effort and progress over the last century and a quarter, and through its annual celebration of these uniquely American qualities, would be a fine contribution to your own 'America, Let's Celebrate' theme."

COMING AND GOING

There are few people among us who haven't on occasion been quite upset by the fact that all of one's mail turned out to be unsolicited junk. There are those among us who have got to the point of instructing these senders of unwanted stuff to take our names off their mailing lists.

There are those among us who have written letters to the public pulse columns bawling the fact that our names get sold to one nuisance company by another and that the volume of our junk mail increases daily.

But now comes the shocker. Not only do most of us resent receiving the junk, but we are the people who are paying for it, because it seems to turn out that first class mail is overpriced so that the junk stuff can be subsidized. There's a neat little irony for you.

Judge Seymour Wenner of the Postal Rate Commission says that "the Postal Service has become a tax-collecting agency, collecting money from first-class mailers to distribute to other favored classes. Every time a person pays 10 cents to mail a first class letter he is contributing almost two cents to pay the costs of other services."

Not many people are going to be happy about finding this out. This judge suggests that each service pay its own way. That would reduce the cost of regular letters and post cards and increase the cost of the stuff most of us don't care to get. It might result in less junk mail. We're all for that.

But the principle is the most important thing: I'll pay for my letter if the junk mailer will pay for his junk mail, but don't ask me to pay for the stuff I don't want. That's the way things should be, but we suspect that there are forces too influential to allow things to be done by this equitable principle.

What Is The Bible?
Deuteronomy 6:7; Luke 1:1-4;
II Timothy 3:14-17;
II Peter 1:20-21.
By C. P. Dame

The Bible is sometimes called a library. The reason is because it is made of several books of different kinds. This is one reason why the Bible is interesting. This lesson tells us that this Book is reliable and its truths are useful for daily living because the Bible is inspired.

I. The Bible contains rules for godly living. The text was written by Moses, Luke, Paul and Peter, familiar men to Bible readers. Israel was about to enter the Promised land, God had given laws to Moses who was ordered to give them to the nation. They were to be taught and practiced, note the words "reach" and "do." If the people would obey God's rules they would prosper, if not they would suffer. Today God's laws are disobeyed by many and our nation feels the consequences. God is not mocked.

II. The Bible is reliable. Unbelief speaks of myths and legends. Luke, a Greek doctor became a Christian and a friend of Paul. Luke had a scientific mind and he was a born historian. His gospel reveals the man. He tells first what is his subject, namely Jesus Christ, the Word, then he cites the sources of his information eye-witnesses, and the ministers of the Word, people who were associated with Him. After getting information which may have taken two years he checked up on it, testing it, and then wrote. Time taught that Luke was right.

III. The Bible is useful for sound living. While in his last prison Paul wrote his last letter to his spiritual son Timothy who had been trained in a godly home. Paul urged him to continue in manhood practicing the teaching he had received since he knew his teachers who were trustworthy. False teaching and teachers abound.

The Bible is able to tell about how to get salvation through faith in Jesus Christ. Since it is inspired, it is profitable "for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness"—that is, in right living which is not easy in a pagan world. We don't outgrow the Bible's teaching. Note the purpose, "That the man of God may be perfect"—blameless and mature.

IV. The Bible is God-inspired. The last verse of the text is interpreted variously. The best is that the scriptures are not the result of men's thinking, something which the prophets and the apostles planned and proclaimed God's spirit led them. In reading the Bible we need the guidance of God's Spirit who moved men to write.

Local Candidates Agree On Many School Issues

Candidates for two positions on the Holland School Board in the June 9 election appeared to have more agreement than differences at a "Meet Your Candidates" meeting Monday night in Herrick Public Library, sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Candidates are John Amaya, incumbent, Marilyn Feininger, David Myers, Carroll Norlin and Miriam Van Eyl. The latter was not present (in Europe) and her statement was presented by Sara Jo Bolte. Eleanor de Kruif of the LWV served as moderator. Forty-four persons were present.

The greater share of the discussion with candidates differing only in degree dealt with the needs of the Latino community, the need for junior high facilities, and to a lesser extent the need for a skill center for those students who do not go on to college.

Striving for excellence in education, the great need for spending funds wisely in a decreasing economy, meeting individual needs of all children in the district, and how much time candidates could give the position, also were emphasized. Amaya, seeking re-election, was a strong advocate of athletic programs, feeling that strong bodies go with strong minds. He was in favor of one new junior high school in view of decreasing enrollments and the need to stretch dollars without duplicating services. Although he has been criticized for absenteeism, records show he missed about one meeting the past year. He is bilingual, having been with Parke-Davis seven years in Puerto Rico, and has been meeting with Latino groups.

Mrs. Feininger was concerned with reading and writing deficiencies in the system, plugged for a skill center and career education, and favored two junior high schools but was willing to settle for one, with a view to a second in five or 10 years under an improved economic situation. She attended school board meetings for two years as a LWV observer and was knowledgeable on many fronts.

Norlin, who is retiring this year as principal of Thomas Jefferson School, was concerned with decisions for the good of all the people and was aware of changes in population and other sectors. He had favored two junior high schools but was willing to take another look. He has spent 42 years in education.

David Myers, associate professor of psychology at Hope College, said he has quite a stake in local education since his eldest son will be graduating from high school in 1984, and other sons running to 1990. He favors one junior high school now and one later, and said the board must never lose sight of the pursuit for excellence. He showed particular interest in solving Latino problems.

Mrs. Van Eyl's statement called attention to her four children in elementary, junior high and high schools, her husband who is with the Hope College faculty, her work which covers 10 years of classroom teaching and currently as a protective service worker for abused and neglected children in Allegan county.

Cars, Homes Hardest Hit

Baseball-Sized Hail Reported

Hailstones, some as large as baseballs, dropped on parts of Holland, Park and Zeeland townships Wednesday night leaving an estimated $15 million damage to homes, cars, mobile homes and crops.

At least two persons were reported injured in the storm and were treated in Holland Hospital and released.

Ottawa County Civil Defense director Glenn Timmer said damage estimates included $5 million to mobile homes, mostly in Leisure Estate on Butter-nut Dr., and Windmill Mobile Home Park on East Lakewood Blvd.; $5 million to houses and $5 million to cars and crops.

Timmer toured the damaged area with Ottawa County Commissioners William Kennedy, James Dressel, Donald Stoltz and Kenneth Raak and a representative of the State Emergency Services at Rockford and reached the damage estimate after the morning tour.

The brunt of the hail storm was felt in an area roughly from Division Ave. east toward Zeeland and generally between Lakewood Blvd and Quincy St.

Timmer said three inch diameter hail and 1.54 inches of rain fell during the storm.

A field of 40 acres of potatoes and 7,000 melons near 104th Ave. and James St. were destroyed by the hail.

The greenhouse at Windmill Island lost more than 1,000 panels of glass and 90 per cent of the plants inside, officials said. The loss could run at least $20,000. Other buildings in the park sustained minor damage but windmill De Zwaan was not damaged.

Consumers Power Co. said 4,000 electrical customers in Ottawa and Kent Counties were without power following the storm, mostly because hail had ripped down private service lines. All power was expected to be restored by noon today.

tered glass covering the center aisle of the sanctuary.

Holland hospital said a woman living along Lakewood Blvd. was treated for injuries when struck on the head by the large hailstones and a man in Holland was treated for injuries when he fell on hail-covered pavements.

Scores of cars and vehicles left outside during the hail storm showed pock marks where hailstones struck the metal. Chrome along the sides of cars also were damaged.

One resident said he used covers from garbage cans for protection while making a dash from his garage to the house.

Lightning was believed to have struck a tree at 169 Bel-laire St. off 136th Ave., splitting the tree in half.

The storm in Holland was part of a system that spread damage to other parts of the state.

Lightning was blamed for fires that heavily damaged several businesses in Mount Pleasant and private homes in Bay County.

The Mount Pleasant fire destroyed offices of the Michigan Claim Service, the Reva Sewing Center and Dr. William Fortino on the east side.

The home of Edwin Helmrich in Bay County burst into flames after lightning struck the chimney.

Council set a hearing July 16 on a petition vacating a portion of an alley between 21st and 22nd Sts. east of Washington Ave.

Again tabled were ordinances on street cabs and street cut fees.

A new application from Klaus Knoll to rezone 22 acres on the southeast corner of 48th St. and Lincoln Ave. from agricultural to D-2 industrial was accepted for first reading and a hearing was set July 2. The request had been studied by the Planning Commission.
